We could have told him from personal knowledge that Hux's Balarmin gives permanent warmth, it invigorates the blood and spreads it along through artery and vein, and ready his men and women, boys and girls, to enjoy cold weather and ward off attacks of disease. It gives the skin kind of warmth, mind, body and strength at the same time, and all its benefits are lasting. There may be a suggestion in this for you. After treatment.

Presently, he returns with some perfectly simple explanation, and you know that your worry was foolish and useless.

But does that cure you? Not at all. That evening your husband is late coming home and you start worrying all over again—now he is the cause.

Every minute of worry is a drop of poison distilled in the joy of life. It is the sworn ally of ill health and bad temper and the great enemy of love. Don't say as many women do, "I can't stop worrying."

It is all a question of mind, and every one of us can control our minds if we only want to make the effort. If you will not stop worrying, at least be honest about it and say, "I could stop worrying if I wanted to, but it would be an effort and I am too lazy to make it."

TIMELY RECIPES.

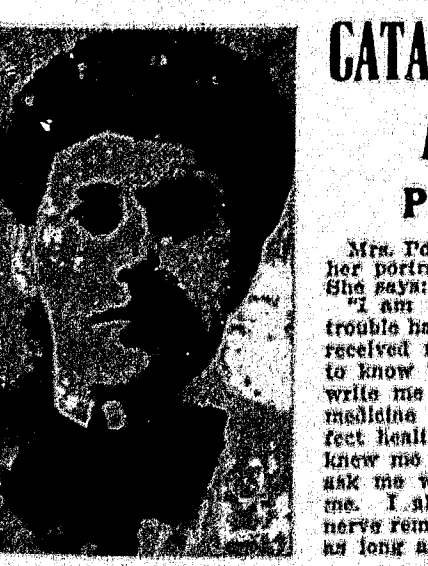

By Edna Hughes Roberts.

The food problem, how to secure palatable foods with a maximum of nourishment at minimum cost, is the biggest question the average housewife must tackle just at this time. Fortunately fruits, especially apples, and nearly all vegetables, are plentiful and reasonable. But fresh meats are very high, and the housewife in a meat eating family has all she can do to keep within any reasonable allowance.

Fish is just as nourishing as lean meat, and if eaten with bread, potatoes, etc., will supply all the needs of the body. Fresh fish, where obtainable, is much cheaper than meat, while salt and smoked fish to be had at reasonable prices everywhere, is also high in food value.

Where baked whitefish of any kind has been the principal dish at a Friday or other evening's dinner and a small portion of the fish has been left over, these scraps should be saved and used in a "made" dish for the following day's luncheon. Herewith is given a tested recipe.

Reheated fish. For two pounds of fish allow half a pint of milk and half a pint of cream, two tablespoons of flour and half a cupful of breadcrumbs. To the milk and cream when boiling, add flour which has been previously mixed with a small quantity of cold milk. Put a layer of this sauce into a baking dish, then a layer of fish, and baked, salt and pepper to taste, another layer of sauce and another of fish until the dish is filled. Cover with bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven half an hour.

Catarrh of the Internal Organs

Mrs. A. T. Powers, R. R. 7, Box 121, London, Ohio, writes: "I write to thank you for the wonderful good your Peruna has done for me. I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble for twenty-two years. Two years ago I began to take Peruna, and I only took about three bottles and today I can say I am a well person."

Catarrh is liable to affect any of the internal organs. This is especially true of the bladder, which is very frequently the seat of catarrh. This is sometimes called cystitis.

But, too often may also be used for this dish, the codfish having been well soaked beforehand.

Oysters Fanned in the Shell. Wash the shells and wipe dry. Place them in a pan with the round shell down. Set in a hot oven for three minutes, then take out and remove the upper shell. Season with pepper and salt and a small lump of butter, cover with cracker crumbs and return to oven and brown.

Ham Cooked in Cider. This is a delicious dish. Put a pint of cider and a cup of brown sugar into enough water to cover the ham. Boil three hours, or until the skin will peel easily. Remove the skin, cover ham with a crust of sugar and bake in a slow oven for three hours.

Dissolve a cup of sugar in a pint of cider and bake the ham frequently while baking. If the cider is very sweet use less sugar.

Cold Weather and the Children.

Do you live in a city, or a large town, where every mother tries to dress her children as others do, no matter how poorly suited either to the child or the season, the style of clothing is?

For the past few mornings we have had more or less bad weather—rain, and chill, such as the early autumn brings. Where the streets and walks are "made," there was, of course, no mud; but there was water, and cold pavements in plenty, as the chill rains trickled along the ways the little feet must tread. Where the sidewalks were poor, or where there were none, it was very bad walking for the children—especially the "kindergarten" class.

Most of the school children had raincoats, and other more or less protecting wraps, about the bodies; but the feet! In far too many instances, they were clad in thin stockings and slippers, or low shoes, leaving the little limbs bare to the damp winds from the slipper tops the little knees, and even higher than that with some of them.

If you had seen them take off their outer wraps, you would see lawns, muslins, calicoes, ginghams, with low necks and short sleeves, and a very large majority of the little ones had very little in the way of petticoats, or undergarments. Some of them had rubbers over the little slippers, but the thin leather would be soaked with the rains by the time they reached the school house.

Many of these little ones had coughs, or catarrhs, and most of them were thin and delicate-looking, with very little color in their faces or "spring" in their walk. The teachers say that many of them are poorly "breakfasted," and the little lunch they bring is not always suitable for them. And one can but wonder why mothers will subject these little babies to such disease-breeding conditions, even if the older children are sent out to care for themselves. The babies do not know what to do; they do not know, really, what is the matter, when they are cold and hungry.

Aches and Pains.

You know by experience that the aches and pains of rheumatism are not permanent, but only temporarily, relieved by external remedies.

Then why not use an internal remedy—Wood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acidity of the blood on which rheumatism depends and cures the disease?

This medicine has done more for the rheumatic than any other medicine in the world.

FAMILY NAMES:

Something of Their Origin and Meaning—Business or Locality Indicated.

What does your name mean? How did family names originate? Did your ancestors have three names, or even two, to keep their individuality distinct? These are a few natural questions that most people find it hard to answer.

A rapid glance at the earliest history of any country shows that the people were content with one name, writes McLure in a London magazine.

But as they grew more numerous it became necessary or desirable to give some additional name or title as a mark of honor, or for a nickname or other means of distinguishing one man from his fellows. So we have Zeno the Stoic, Saul of Tarsus, Peter the Hermit, Richard the Lion Hearted.

Whence first came surnames no one may say. Perhaps all surnames were used equally, but next to "Smith," the commonest ones are those made up of the father's name plus the word son.

"son" in Saxon or its equivalent in other dialects. In Celtic the word "son" is "Mac" or "Mie," usually shortened to "Mc" or "Mc." So we find the MacDonalds (the sons of Donal), the McLaughlins, the McCullochs and the McDouglases.

From the Irish "O" (for "son of") we have the O'Briens, the O'Connors and the O'Germans. In Welsh "son of" appears as "Ap," and this placed before a father's name changes it so as to be hardly recognizable; in this list "Isang Price" (Ap Price, son of Price), "Hewen (Ap Owen), Pritchard (Ap Richard), Powell (Ap Howell).

From the Norman "de," a "de," came the modified form Fitz, and then Fitz Warren as two names, Fitzgerald or Fitz Gerald, and Fitzpatrick. Closely allied to these are the endings "kin," "at," "ey," "et," and "ing," meaning "little." Hence we get Wilkins (little Will), Willet, Wiley, Elliot (little Elias) and Dunning (little Dan.)

After the battle of Hastings in 1066, came the Normans, and with them a host of new names. Then we hear of the Robertes, Richardes, Hotaces and Mileses (a soldier), with various modified forms. So from Robert came Robertson; Robins, Robinson; Dobbs, Dobbinson and Dobson. Richard gave us Richardson, Richard, Ricks, Dick, Dix, Dixon, Dickens, Dickinson, Ricks, Higgins and strangely enough Blitchcock ("cock" meaning a pert young fellow).

Once more became prominent about this time, John, Johnson and the derivative Jones, son of John, which in its various forms of Jenkins, Jenks, Jennings, Jack, Jackson, Jacob, the Welsh Evans, the Flemish Hanson, Haskins, Hancock and Littlejohn, gives the Smiths a hard race to keep first place.

In the early days when the old Norse settlers were realities we expect to find some names derived from them. So we have Olson, probably from "Olin," "Thor" is probably seen in Torry and Torrey in Thorman (Thor's man); also in Thorburn, where "burn" is from an old word meaning a bear, an animal sacred to this god. Flat represents a subordinate deity of that name, whose images of large size was made of flint.

From likewise recalls a minor divinity, an elf, "Fristi," who belted to produce coldy hence our "Jack Frost" or wintry rhymes. The heavenly bodies, were deified and still live as names. Here we naturally look for Mr. Sun, but in vain, although Mr. Moon is fairly common. The mystery is solved, however, when we learn that among the ancient Norsemen the sun was feminine Jolly and the moon was her brother. Star we have, and the deities of the chief seasons have given us Summer and Winter, with Snow as the latter's companion.

With the extension of Christianity came scores of a biblical stamp, and in great numbers, boys were named in honor of prominent characters or of children on whose birthdays the children were born or saved from some disaster. Here we find Adam, Moses, David, Matthew, John, Paul or Saul, Philip or Phelps and Selmour (St. Maur).

If the birth occurred on a holy day or during a feast, that was recorded, and our directories contain Christmas, Yule and the like meaning through the Norman, Noel and Newell, Pask and Pascal (Easter), Pentecost, and Tiffany and Tiffen from the feast of Epiphany.

Localities must have had a great and permanent influence on names. Even now we speak of "John Doe" at the schoolhouse, by the mill or elsewhere. In Saxon, "ate" "at" or "atten" meant "at the," and old records abound with such entries as "Thomas at the Grove," "Andrew at Woods," etc. Their descendants, Atwood, Atwell and Nash ("atten ash"), are everyday acquaintances. Such names as Woodman, Poole (pool or small lake), Gate, Cross, Church, Temple, Crossman, Townsend, Field and street show their origin at once.

ways toward relieving situations like that found in Washington and other parts of the country where the representatives of the four billion dollars of electric railway "juice" and scattered stock, monopolizes the public streets, and grows richer as stragglers increase in number.

MAKE IT IN THE UNITED STATES.

Having failed to talk manufacturers into the idea of producing articles in common use, the Bureau of Standards at Washington resorted to one other way of reaching results. Two years ago the Bureau employed experts to solve the problem of making optical glasses in the United States, and now it is announced that if any American institution wishes to engage in the business that Uncle Sam will tell them all about how things should be done. The same Bureau has solved the problem of manufacturing porcelain, which heretofore has practically all come from Germany. Since the war a great many articles in common use in this country have been difficult to procure, and the government is taking advantage of the condition to drive home the necessity of producing everything that is possible within the United States.

HAVE NEWSPAPERS ANY INFLUENCE?

Secretary of State Bryan told the National Press Club at Washington that he got more votes when he was opposed by all the great newspapers of the country than in any of his other campaigns. He reasoned that the great newspapers are owned or controlled by business interests that care more for themselves and their affairs than they do for the country, and that the people know it. The idea of the right kind of a newspaper, was one in which the editorials were all written by the owner of the paper, instead of employees. He described the kind of papers that one the Jones Washington letter.

WOULD DIVIDE CALIFORNIA.

California have been "feeling their way" in Washington as to the proposal to divide the long, big state. The southern part is becoming ambitious and it is said that it contains gentlemen who would like to have two more United States Senators employed by the government, the inference being that they might qualify. Idaho and Washington have also come forward with plans for a new state to be carved out of the territory of the two. "It's a long road" to secure such things nowadays, as the period of state-making has been put into a closed book at the national seat of government.

BEER AND WHISKY SPLIT.

National prohibition has attained a victory in that the beer and whisky interests have split, and the beerists are trying to prove to the country that their brand of booze is a food product. While extolling its great qualities they are pointing to whisky as so strong and raw that it cannot imitate into the system without a shiver. Whiskey retorts that beer makes people dopey, destroys the kidneys, and "is to good anyhow." In Congress the law has been referred to as another instance of "regress falling out," and the advocates of prohibition say that the "honest people will eventually get their due."

"DO YOU SPEAK SPANISH?"

Men employed in the federal government are frequently being asked by their superiors: "Do you speak Spanish?" And those who can answer affirmatively have, in many instances, fallen into important positions, or gone on interesting trips to South America. There is a real boom in the Spanish tongue, and its activities are not confined to official circles, for as traveling business firms are calling for assistants who can help them carry on the trade they are developing with

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for full particulars. Address: F. J. CHENEY, CO., Toledo, Ohio. THE NATIONAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Delegates from 600 local Chambers of Commerce affiliated with the national body, have been holding their annual meeting at the national capital. The convention brought forth the broadest interchange of ideas that has been known in a long time, as from this various sections of the country these men who are experienced in municipal problems and affairs have come to meet with their fellow-laborers in the nation's vineyard. It appears that there are many local bodies that have not yet affiliated with the national organization, and it is a big oversight, as the men who have been at Washington have had the opportunity to "get together" with the great forces of government, from the President of the United States, who made an address, to the delegate from Podunk, Nevada. And the broadening effect upon the country can hardly fail to manifest itself when these delegates of the 600 local bodies get back home and stir things up in their own organizations.

POOR QUALITY OF BUTTER OFTEN CAUSED BY LACK OF THOROUGH COOLING OF CREAM.

One of the most common causes of poor-quality butter is lack of immediate, thorough cooling of the cream after separation. The Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., has made a careful investigation of conditions on a large number of dairy farms, and the data obtained show that, if properly cooled, cream of the best grade can be produced with but little extra labor or expense. The principles involved are very simple and are easily understood.

A liberal use of ice which has been stored in winter to be used the following summer is one of the requirements for the solution of the poor-butter problem. Farmers who are already successfully delivering good products to the creamery have usually provided for themselves a convenient source of supply for the ice, suitable houses for storing the ice, and ice-water tanks for the immediate cooling of the milk and cream. In parts of New England, although the dairymen often hold cream on the farm for four days in the summer and seven days in the winter, they deliver practically all their product while sweet. After it reaches the creamery it is pasteurized and shipped a distance of from 50 to 200 miles, and may still be sold in these remote localities in the form of sweet cream.

The expense connected with the liberal use of ice in this connection is so small and the result so satisfactory that details have been compiled for the consideration of those interested in dairying and are now issued in the form of a new Farmers' Bulletin (No. 623) entitled: "Ice Houses and the Use of Ice on the Dairy Farm." The bulletin should be useful in dairy sections where natural ice is obtainable. Plans and specifications for ice houses are given.

In its general summary the bulletin makes the following 10 suggestions:

- (1) Whenever ice is abundant the cost of harvesting and storing is usually very small.
- (2) If a stream of water is available, a small ice pond can generally be constructed on the farm by building a dam.
- (3) In building an ice house care should be taken to provide for proper drainage and ventilation. The drain should be efficiently trapped to prevent air from entering the house through the drain.
- (4) The efficient insulating of ice houses is of the utmost importance, consequently great care should be exercised in the selection and installation of the insulating material.
- (5) About 40 cubic feet of space should ordinarily be allowed for a ton of ice. A cubic foot of ice weighs about 57 pounds.
- (6) Under general conditions about 1 pound of ice will be required to cool and keep 1 pound of cream in good condition until delivered to the creamery when deliveries are made three times a week.
- (7) When storing ice, about 50 per cent more should be packed than is actually needed. This excess allows for a heavy shrinkage and for household uses.
- (8) The dairy farmer should provide annually one-half to 1 ton of ice per cow for cooling cream only and 1 1/2 to 2 tons per cow if milk is cooled, depending upon the locality and other factors.
- (9) If a cake of ice is kept floating in the water surrounding the cream cans when the ordinary cooling cans are used, the temperature will remain at about 40 degrees F.
- (10) Flood ice-water tanks can usually be constructed for from $5 to $20.

Wonderful Exhibits From All Lands Show the World's Best Progress

From Beginning to End Magnificent Panama-Pacific International Exposition Will Abound With Superb Educational and Entertainment Features.

By HAMILTON WRIGHT.

THE construction of the vast Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco was 95 per cent completed three months before the opening day, on Feb. 20, 1915. The early installation of thousands of tons of rare and costly exhibits from all parts of the globe and the participation of forty of the world's great countries have assured a celebration that will be unrivaled in its splendor, magnitude, interest and comprehensiveness.

From its opening until its close, on Dec. 4, 1915, the Exposition will abound with original features collected at an expenditure of many millions of dollars. It will present a cross section of human achievement. The Pan-

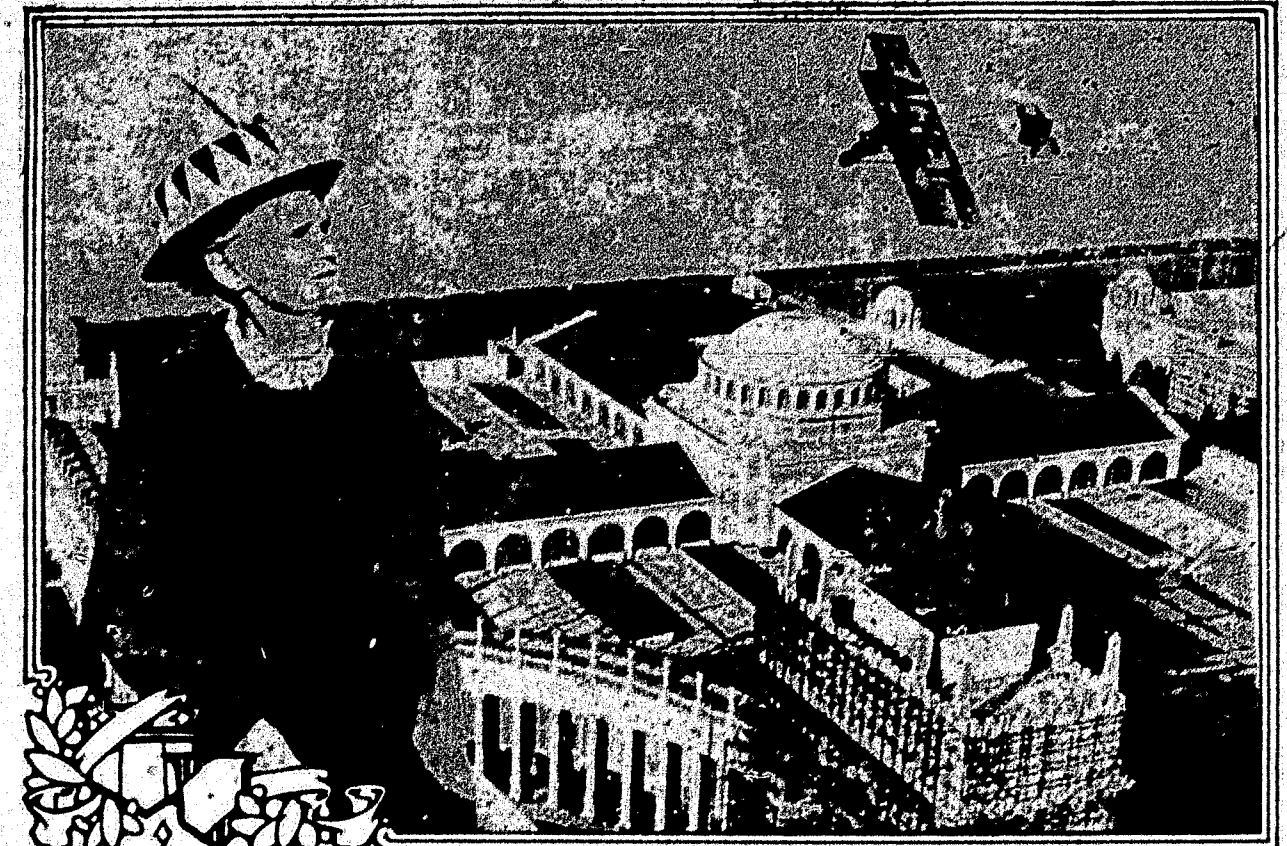

Francisco in a single day, and, far in advance of its opening, the Exposition had created an unprecedented interest throughout the world, and its opening was eagerly awaited.

In keen competitive exhibits there will be presented more than 90,000 single exhibits and groups of related exhibits portraying the results of the world's best efforts in recent years.

This wonderful Exposition, presented at an outlay of more than $50,000,000, celebrates a contemporaneous achievement, the building of the Panama canal, and all exhibits that are entered for competitive award will be those that have been originated or produced since the great Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis ten years ago. The possible exception to this rule will be where earlier exhibits are farer work will, for example, see in the Palace of Mines an exhibit three-fourths of an acre in extent, illustrating the manner in which the largest steel corporation in the world is caring for and plans to still further advance the welfare of its employees. In the Palace of Education they will be interested in a great United States government exhibit.

The great war in no way has diminished the prospect of attendance at the Exposition, and thousands of Americans will for the first time enjoy the educative trip across their native land. After the outbreak of the conflict the number of conventions deciding to meet in San Francisco proportionately increased. One of the most important of the assemblages will be the international engineering

THE MOTHER OF LINCOLN BEACHEY, FROM THE TOWER OF JEWELS, 435 FEET ABOVE THE EARTH, AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, WATCHES HER SON LOOP HIS ONE THOUSANDTH LOOP.

When Lincoln Beachey, a son of San Francisco, on the occasion of his homecoming after breaking all world records as a daredevil loop of 999 loops, performed two entirely new and death defying stunts over the completed palace of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition it was his aged mother who for the first time waved him on to fresh achievements. Mrs. Beachey held a place of honor, 435 feet up in the air, on the tip-top of the wonderful Tower of Jewels. From this vantage she was able to watch every erratic move of her daredevil son. She cried out only once. That was when he wrote the figure "1000" against the clouds, high above the two miles of completed exhibit palace, significant of the looping of his one thousandth loop.

ama canal is today open and doing business on a far vaster scale than was predicted for it, and the Exposition, which celebrates the opening of the canal, is today regarded as the greatest manifestation of national achievement in American history. Here will be a neutral ground where even nations engaged in warfare will display on a scale never before equaled their progress in the arts, industries and sciences of peace.

Within three months before the opening of the Exposition as many as 2,000 tons of consignments had reached San Francisco to illustrate the evolution of the processes of manufacture—as, for example, a display of a model of the first cotton gin in connection with the marvelous equipment into which it has evolved.

Many of the displays will be especially adapted to study by the delegates to great national and international congresses and conventions, of which more than 800, embracing almost every phase of human activity, have voted to meet in San Francisco in 1915. Delegates to the congresses interested in social progress and welcome, at which its distinguished chairman, Colonel George W. Goethals, will preside.

The foreign participation will be notable. The nations are not attempting to show everything that they produce, but will lay special emphasis upon those products in which they excel. In the Danish display, for example, will be shown products of the Royal Danish porcelain factory at Copenhagen. Japan in her exhaustive exhibit will display priceless works of art, loaned by direction of the imperial household and many of which could not be duplicated. From Italy will be shown historic paintings of the old masters, hitherto never exhibited in America in the originals. From China there have reached San Francisco sections of exhibits collected under the supervision of the governors of the Chinese provinces. Rare silks and satins, carvings, inlay work in the precious metals, exhibits of the transportation methods employed in the old China and the modern methods used in the awakening republic will be shown.

New Zealand will make a marvellous exhibit of its rare woods, of its flocks, of its superb scenic charms. A large number of rare giant tree ferns from New Zealand will be found growing on the Exposition grounds.

The Argentine Republic early set aside a larger sum than any ever appropriated by a foreign nation for representation in an American exposition. The modern cities of Argentina, the schools, churches, libraries, the great live stock and agricultural interests will be extensively portrayed, and the mutual interests of South America and North America will be emphasized in almost every conceivable manner.

From South Africa will be shown diamond exhibits and methods of extraction. The magnificent Canadian displays will review not only the widely known agricultural wealth, but will illustrate the scenic charms of the great Dominion, of snow clad mountain peaks, of far-reaching forest, of inland lakes in chains of silver and rushing mountain streams.

all indications promises to be very successful.

THAT "TIRED FEELING"

Is Often Unnatural.

An extra hard day's work may tire
you. But if the close of every day finds you worn and weary—your system needs a TONIC.

"L. P." Atwood's Medicine taken daily, drives away that "tired feeling." It has helped New England folk earn the name of being "tireless workers," and Mrs. Atwood's letters tell why it has become their favorite tonic.

"As my mother, Mrs. Smith, is writ-

tell you that I think it one of the best household remedies. I consider it one of the best tonics on the market."

The annual meeting of the Maine Society of Civil Engineers was held at resident engineer for the Rumford

Paul D. Sargent of Augusta, vice president; and Frank E. Pressey of Bangor, secretary and treasurer.

Representative Walter G. Morse has introduced in the Legislature a bill which provides the appropriation of $70,000 for the building of a court house at Rumford. The bill provides that the county pay one-half of the expense, and the town of Rumford the other half. It is expected that there will be a lively hearing, as the people of South Paris and Norway, at a recent public meeting at the court house, expressed their opposition to the proposition. Inasmuch as some of the opponents of the court house at Rumford have suggested that the amount of court business transacted at the May term of the Supreme Court at Rum-ford would not justify the existence of such a building, the court records have been looked up, over since the establishment of the Rumford Court,
with the following results:—Civil cases tried at Paris and at Rumford since the establishment of the May term of the Supreme Court at Rumford, 1907-1915: at Rumford, 39; at Paris 35.
Paris has two terms of court, and Rumford has only one each year. Amounts of verdicts where verdicts have been recovered for plaintiffs at Rumford, $18,428.20; at Paris, $9,326.
75. The above statistics show clearly that Rumford with half the number of terms as Paris has done more business
both in the number of civil cases tried and in the importance of the cases as measured by the amounts of the verdicts rendered. We can conceive of no more convincing argument of the necessity of a term of court at Rumford than the above figures, and hence the necessity of the county supplying suitable permanent quarters
for the accommodation of the court.

Mixer of the Rumford Falls Power

COTTONSEED RATIONS THAT SUPPLY CHEAP AND VAL- UABLE PROTEIN AND FAT.

Twenty per cent of our cottonseed meal was consumed last season by Germany, Denmark, Switzerland, and other European countries. The present war, however, has abolished the German consumption of this product. This fact, together with the large cotton crop produced this year, has thrown an excess of cottonseed products on the home market, reducing the average price of cottonseed meal and hulls 20 to 25 per cent. The meal shipped to Europe last year would feed 400,000 head of mature cattle for 12 months.

Even under ordinary circumstances,
with the price of cottonseed products at the specialists in animal feeding of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., the meal is the cheapest nitrogenous feed available. Pound for pound, cottonseed meal contains three times the per cent of protein contained in wheat (grain), wheat bran, wheat middlings, vetch hay, alfalfa hay, soja-bean hay, or crimson-clover hay, and four times the quantity of fat found in any of these foodstuffs. About 88 per cent of the protein in high-grade cottonseed meal is digested by the animal, or, in other words, the digestive coefficient of the protein in the meal is 88 per cent. The digestive coefficient of corn meal is only 68 per cent, and it does not contain one-fourth the actual amount of digestible protein found in cottonseed meal.

Comparing the cost of the digestible protein in a pound of cottonseed meal with that in other feeds, and assuming the average delivered cost of cottonseed meal to be $24 per ton, the figures show that the feeder gets two to five times as much protein for his money from cottonseed meal as from other feeds. The following table shows the relative cost of protein in cottonseed meal and other forms of feed:

Cost per ton.	Percent digestible protein.	Cost in cents per pound of protein.
Cottonseed meal.....	88	1.35
Ground oats.....	14.00	3.57
Corn meal.....	15.00	3.60
Wheat bran.....	15.00	3.60
Dried brewers' grain.....	15.00	3.60
Corn feed.....	15.00	3.60
Luxuriant middlings.....	15.00	3.60
Gluten feed.....	15.00	3.60
Lined meal.....	15.00	3.60

In addition, an average of about 65 per cent of the fertilizing value of the nitrogen remains in the manure.

In the past we have imported a large part of our supplies for commercial fertilizers, and these importations will be cut down on account of the war.

The value of cottonseed meal will therefore be still more obvious in the spring, when the demand for fertilizers begins.

A few specimen rations containing cottonseed products are given as an illustration of the use that may be made of these feeds. The actual amounts will vary, of course, as the appetite of the animal and judgment of the feeder may determine, and as other feeds are combined in the ration. The proportions stated are correct for ordinary conditions, and with reasonable care in feeding rations of this kind will be found both satisfactory and economical.

MAINE HAS 56,918 FARM HOMES.

There are now 177,960 homes in Maine, according to a report issued by the Census Bureau at Washington, D.
C., while ten years ago the number was 163,344, compared with 150,355 homes in 1890. Thirty-two per cent of the Maine homes are farm homes, compared with 35 per cent in 1900 and 41 per cent in 1890. The number of homes in this state free of incumbrance at the present time is 82,262, while 25,481
are encumbered and 65,223 are rented.

THE DEMON OF WOE, WANT AND POVERTY.

By B. W. Inglish.

(Fire Prevention Expert.)

There is no poetry in a fire that destroy. There is no warmth of good cheer in a blazing house. Only misery and want and woe can come from homes destroyed, from business houses wrecked, from savings vanished via the fire route.

And fires are the fruits of human acts of commission and omission. They do not start of their own accord. They must always have a human being for a partner!

This being the case, why not cultivate a little foresight? Why not keep your premises clear of trash, of litter,
of waste and such things that are excellent fire food?

When properly curbed and circum-scribed, a cheering fire is a thing that makes a most excellent servant, contributing greatly to the comforts of man. But to keep fire a servant requires constant and unceasing vigil.

While a good servant it is a most exacting master!

Are you doing your full share toward preventing fires? If you are you merit the thanks of your neighbors. Every time a house is destroyed your neighbors must stand their full part of the fire insurance you may collect.

MANY MASSACHUSETTS WOMEN WORK FOR A LIVING.

More than 40 per cent of the women in Lowell and Fall River, Mass., work for a living, and this is the highest percentage of female occupancy for any city in the United States whose population is over 100,000, according to a census report issued recently. Oakland, California, a residential city with practically no factories, has the lowest rate. Only 21 per cent of the women of that city are engaged in gainful occupation.

The number of mortgaged homes in the United States is 3,000,000, while 6,000,000 are free of debt and the remainder are rented. Since 1890 the number of homes in the United States has increased from 12,000,000 to over 20,000,000.

12 pounds prairie hay.
Ration No. 2:
3 pounds corn.
3 pounds wheat bran.
2 pounds cottonseed meal.
14 pounds sorghum hay.
Amount of feed for 100 pounds of live
weight.

For Fattening Sheep.

Ration No. 1:
2 pounds corn.
1 1/2 pound cottonseed meal.
1 1/2 pounds prairie hay.

Ration No. 2:
1 pound black strap molasses.
1 1/2 pound cottonseed meal.
3 pounds cottonseed hulls.

For Growing Sheep.

Suggested rations:
1 1/2 pound corn.
1 1/2 pound cottonseed meal.
1 1/2 pound wheat bran.
2 pounds prairie hay.
2 pounds silage or roots.

Growing sheep to be kept in condition should have about 2 pounds of silage or roots, or similar food, in their ration.

If cottonseed hulls and meal can not be bought in the local markets any cottonseed oil mill or broker will supply these products. The meal is generally marketed in sacks of 100 pounds.
The usual carload consists of 300 to 400 of these sacks. The hulls can be bought in 100-pound bales or sacks, or can be bought cheaper loose in bulk.
A carload varies from 12 to 20 tons.
If desired, these products may be shipped in the same car by putting the sacked meal on top of the loose hulls.

POEMS WORTH READING

THERE IS NO DEATH.

There is no death—the stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forever more.

There is no death—the forest leaves
Convert to life the vernal air;
The rocks disgorge to feed
The hungry moss they bear.

There is no death—the dust we tread
Shall change beneath the summer
showers,
To golden grain, or mellow fruit,
Or rainbow tinted flowers.

There is no death; the leaves may fall,
The flowers may fade and pass away—
They only wait, through wintry hours,
The warm, sweet breath of May.

There is no death! The choicest gifts
That heaven hath kindly lent to earth
Are ever first to seek again
The country of their birth.

And all things that for growth or joy
Are worthy of our love and care,
Which loss has left us desolate,
Are safely garnered there.

Though life becomes a dreary waste,
We know its fairest, sweetest flowers,
Transplanted into Paradise
Adorn immortal bowers.

The voice of bird-like melody
That we have missed and mourned
so long
Now mingles with the angel choir
In everlasting song.

There is no death! Although we grieve
When beautiful, familiar forms
That we have learned to love are torn
From our embracing arms.

Although with bowed and breaking
heart,
With sabbie garb and silent tread,
We hear their senseless dust to rest,
And say that they are "dead."

They are not dead; they have but passed
Beyond the mists that blind us here,
Into the new and larger life,
Of that serene sphere.

They have but dropped their robe of clay
To put their shining raiment on;
They have not wandered far away—
They are not "lost" or gone.

Though disembodied and glorified,
They call to us here and love us yet;
The dear ones they have left behind
They never can forget.

And somewhere, when our hearts grow
faint
Mid temptations fierce and deep,
Or when the wildly ringing waves
Of grief or passion sweep,

We feel upon our fevered brow
Their gentle touch, their breath of holing
Their arms enfold us, and our hearts
Grow comforted and calm.

And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear, immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless universe
Is life—there are no dead.

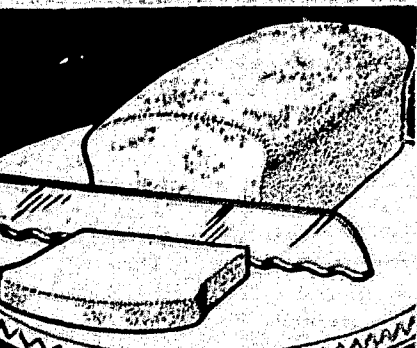

IN THE GARDEN OF MY HEART.
We never miss the sunshine until the shadows fall,
We never regret the bitter words 'til pained beyond recall;
We never miss the laughter until the
eyes are wet,
We never miss our happiness 'til love's
bright sun has set.

We never miss the singing until the birds have flown,
We never miss the blossoms until the spring has gone;
We never miss our joyousness 'til sorrow bids us wake,
We never know we have a heart 'til it begins to break.

Dear boy lying back the sunshine, my bitter words forgot, Bring back the old time happiness, my eyes with tears are wet;
Bring back the birds' soft singing dear,
Love why should he part?
Hill Springtime thunders bloom again,
In the garden of my heart.

THE DRAMA.
When I am sleeping I go in my dream
Far from the children and the man
I love,
I meet with the dead and talk, converse it seems,
And I have forgotten that they ever die!

They come to us quietly, the loved and lost.

lost,
There is so much to say in a short while.
Nowise strange is it that a dear ghost
Should be as the living and be glad and smile.

In the old garden we go hand in hand,
When friends are long parted there is much to say,
Much to be explaining and to understand,
We walk in old gardens in a long dead May.

Breasting the hill we go; we skirt the wheat,
My houses and gardens I never know,
All too fast the time goes when old friends meet,
Sure, I was starved for you, and you, and you.

Was I forgetting, then, the patient
dead?
Mercy of mercies that in dreams
they live!
They come seeking and finding me up-
on my bed.
In dreams they comfort me, in dreams forgive.

They come to me in my dreams, not cold and lone.
Oh, never sad ghosts they come to fret my sleep,
But just as I knew them in the days
long gone,
When I wake from my dreams I wake
to weep.

ford.

Willis Magner has gone to Jackson, N. H., to spend the remainder of the more Falls, Tuesday.

an attack of bronchitis.

"A Fisherman's Luck, or The Wagner," which was presented at the Canton Opera House, Friday evening, under the auspices of the Universalist Church, was a decided success, and made a great hit with the large audience present. The drama was by local talent and the cast included:

Tom Manley, a poor fisherman,
Donald B. Partridge,
Wm. Farren, alias Squire Hammond,
Clyde Bicknell,
James Hammond, Farren's son,
Theodore Woodward,
David Morris, known as "Uncle Davy,"
P. B. Woodward,

Silas Kilder, stage struck,
Arthur Westgate,
Rev. Geo. Medhurst, G. L. Wadlin,
Rose Prescott, Hammond's ward,
Mrs. Donald Partridge,
Mrs. Manley, Tom's mother,
Mrs. F. B. Woodward,

Ruth Manley, Tom's sister,
Miss Eleanor Westgate,
Little Nellie, a waif of the ocean,
Evelyn Woodward.

Each part was portrayed in a most excellent manner and the play well balanced, there being no "streaks" in the cast. Special mention might be made of Little Evelyn Woodward who took the part of a waif of the ocean in a charming manner. The scene in the third act, where the child sees a vision just before her death, was particularly touching. A beautiful tableau was here introduced which was very effective. The specialties between the acts were first class. A sweet song by Evelyn Woodward, with violin accompaniment, was much enjoyed, also vocal music by J. C. Bicknell and Theodore Woodward, the latter responding to an encore. A soprano solo by J. C. Bicknell costumed as a spinster, was heartily cheered and he responded with dancing. The Dixfield High school orchestra furnished music and a social dance followed. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served. It is hoped the entertainment will be repeated in the near future as "it's something we've got to get used to."

BANISH SCROFULA

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures the Blood, Skin Troubles Vanish.

Scrofula eruptions of the face and body are both annoying and disfiguring. The complexion would be perfect if they were not present! This disease shows itself in other ways, as blemishes in the neck, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, wasting of the muscles, a form of dyspepsia, and general debility.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine completely eradicates scrofula. It purifies and enriches the blood, removes humors, and builds up the whole system.

Scrofula is either inherited or acquired. Better be sure you are quite free from it. Get Hood's Sarsaparilla and begin taking it today.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

"God Almighty in His infinite wisdom and goodness, has given us the most magnificent system of waterways that was ever vouchsafed to any people in the history of the world—and we have been more negligent in improving and using them than any other civilized people on the face of the globe." It was "The Speaker" speaking—Champ Clark, as he is familiarly known from one end of the country to the other—who has been a Member of the House of Representatives for twenty years, was Speaker of the Sixty-second Congress, is Speaker of the Sixty-third, and will undoubtedly be the Speaker of the Sixty-fourth as well.

"Of course I am in favor of improving our rivers and harbors," continued the Speaker. "No man who wasn't could represent my constituents, for my district straddles the Mississippi for 100 miles. But that is not the only reason nor even the most important reason, why I am interested in waterways, for I consider that the conservation, improvement and development of our national resources—affecting, as it does, not only ourselves but our children, to the remotest generation—is the greatest problem before the American people."

"I have asserted this and again,

both in Congress and out of it, that it would be a profitable investment for the American people to make these rivers navigable in fact if there never was another passenger or pound of freight carried over them, because they would regulate the freight rates. But I do not believe that there will be any lack of passengers or freight to use them when they are improved, nor do I believe that their improvement will injure the railroads in the long run. If we ever make these rivers navigable, here is what will happen: the heavy freight, the stuff that is not perishable immediately, will be carried by the boats and the perishable freight and the passengers, most of them, will be carried on the railroads.

"A man who has traveled over this country as much as I have in the last twenty years knows that one of these two things must happen—either the railroads have got to double-track or quadruple-track their roads; or the rivers have got to be made navigable, if the freight of this country is to be carried. The United States has not completed its growth—it is still in its infancy. This nation is not finished—it has hardly been begun. The principal trouble of the railroads today is not so much tracks as terminals, and the time is coming when the railroads, no matter how many tracks they have, will not be able to do the business."

"We are inclined to boast of the 91,000,000 people which we had at the time of the last census, or the 100,000,000 which we probably have today, but let us take a little look at the future. Until a short time ago the farmers of this country were trying to spread themselves out over as many acres as possible. Now they are beginning to see that what they have got to do is to go down into the soil and get as much out of every acre as possible. Some years ago James Wilson, of Iowa, who for sixteen years was Secretary of Agriculture, made a speech in which he said that if the Mississippi Valley were cultivated for all it is worth, each acre on the average would sustain one human being. Do you know how many people that would give us? It would give us 1,250,000,000 people between the top of the Rockies and the crest of the Alleghenies."

"During the twenty years that I have been in Congress a good many Rivers and Harbors bills have been passed, and every one of them has been derided and denounced and called a 'Pork Barrel.' If there ever was a time when that epithet applied to river and harbor legislation, that time has passed. The chief trouble in the past has been not that too much money was appropriated for river and harbor work, but too little; and the appropriations biennially, or at even longer intervals, was a serious mistake. The intervening years, without appropriations by Congress, witnessed the might of the waters undoing the work done under previous appropriations. Since its commencement, five years ago, the wisdom of the policy of annual appropriations for rivers and harbors has been convincingly demonstrated and completely justified."

"The Rivers and Harbors bill which recently passed the House, and is now pending in the Senate, makes appropriations for no new projects and carries a total of only $94,000,000, in round numbers. Economy was probably necessary this year, under existing conditions, but in ordinary times the $50,000,000 annually asked for by the National Rivers and Harbors Congress ought to be the minimum, instead of the maximum, amount expended until our waterways and harbors have been adequately improved."

"The people of the Mississippi Valley believe in improving the waterways and harbors in all parts of the United States, and are willing to help the people in other parts of the country get this improvement if they will treat us fairly in return, but they realize that the improvement of their own rivers is vital to their prosperity, and I believe that I represent the sentiment of the people in the Mississippi Valley when I say that we propose to see that this is done. The time is coming, and it is not very far distant either, when the Mississippi Valley will control the nation. When we set out to improve and utilize our rivers, the partisans of the East, the provincial-minded editors of the metropolitan newspapers of the East, will have about as much effect in stopping us as a straw stack would in damping the Mississippi in time of flood."

Which goes to show that the Honorable Champ Clark, who was once the editor of a country weekly, has not lost the ability to produce some pointed, pungent and pertinent paragraphs himself.

When the average man makes his wife an expensive present, the always thin-skinned man is guilty of something.

FOUNDER'S DAY AT THE NORTHERLY SCHOOLS.

February 5, 1915, Bishop Hamilton of Massachusetts conducted the Founder's Day exercises at the Northernly Schools at East Northfield, Mass. Since Mr. D. L. Moody's death fifteen years ago, the anniversary of his birth, Feb. 5, has been celebrated each year as Founder's Day. Today all the academies in exercise of the schools were discontinue and Bishop Hamilton, an associate of Mr. Moody, in the Boston Campaign in 1877, delivered an address before each school on the Founder, Mr. D. L. Moody. In the afternoon the students of the Seminary enjoyed their annual sleigh ride. It took twenty-eight teams with large sleds to carry the company of over four hundred. The Bishop spoke in part as follows:

"Mr. Moody to me was a different man in appearance from what he was to any other friend. And he was not the same man to me at one time that he was at another. He had so many diversities done up in himself that he was one thing today and another tomorrow and both equally interesting and influential for good."

"He grew to his task, a law unto himself. But the natural explanation of his career is the supernatural one."

"For the effectiveness of his preaching he depended upon four things: first, the preparation of the sermon from his Bible. No man, more than Mr. Moody, seemed to make his Bible almost his whole library. His second dependence was prayer, he literally prayed without ceasing. In the third place, he was the master magician in the use of tact. Lastly, there was no question but what he had the perseverance of the saints, and more of it than any of the saints I ever knew."

"Every anniversary hereafter shall repeat his biography. And yonder is Little Round Top like the Round Top at Gettysburg, a memorial of a more decisive battle than the fifteen battle fields of recorded history. If he had to die to possess it, yet is it not his monument forever a monument of his triumph over life and even death, as it shall be over his own grave in the days of his Lord's coming."

READ "PEG O' MY HEART"

PEG AND MICHAEL

It will appear serially in this paper.

The play ran 604 consecutive nights, or about two years, at a New York theater, scoring one of the greatest hits of the past decade.

The story, like the play, was written by J. Hartley Manners. It is full of heart interest. It is witty and clever. Every line of it will entertain you.

A romping, madcap, bewitching Irish girl is turned over to the care of aristocratic English relatives.

They dislike her, but Peg holds her own with jaunty pride, and in the end, by her generosity and big heartedness, wins them over, and, what is more, wins her fortune, and, what is still more, wins a very gallant lover.
